BuilderVision, Inc. Launches Online Product Selector for Builders

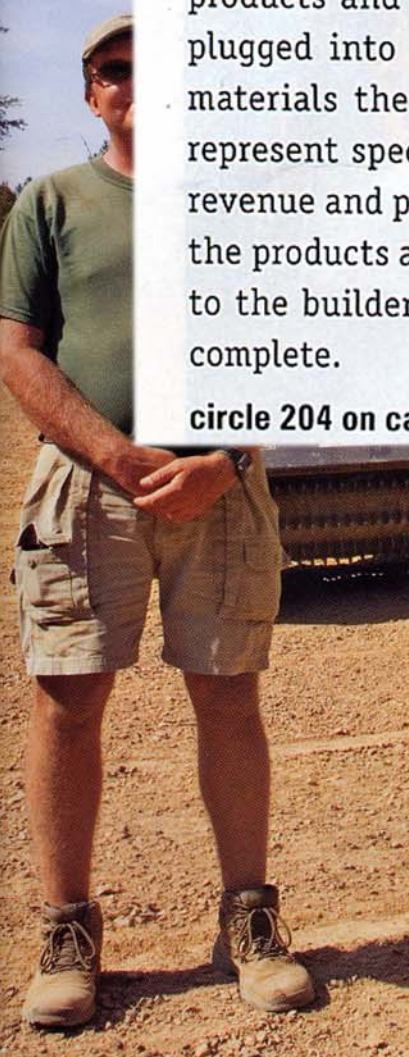

BuilderVision, Inc. introduces the Product Selector, which is an online tool that allows builders to offer home buyers a quick way to select desired products and materials for their custom home. The Product Selector is plugged into the builder's website and is filled with the products and materials the builder supplies. It displays room scenes and tabs that represent specific product categories and suggests options that increase revenue and profit for the builder. Home buyers can place a check next to the products and materials they prefer. The checklist is e-mailed directly to the builder or designer for their review once the selection process is complete.
